Comfortable Home Rebates Program

MAY 2023

Summer is Coming. Are You Ready to Save and Earn?

Happy Summer, Katie!

Did you know?

There are two easy ways you can reduce energy when it's most expensive and save on your electricity bills: SmartAC and OhmConnect. Both are great ways to save money and stabilize the grid during the hottest days. That means by participating in one of these programs, you're doing your part to prevent blackouts and brownouts.

Since participants are limited to one program per customer, we're providing you with information, so you can choose the program that's right for you.

SmartAC

Energy demand increases on hot summer days because thousands of customers overuse their air conditioning units. PG&E remotely activates SmartAC switches on those days to help maintain adequate power supply without power interruptions. It's free, automated and you'll earn $50 when you enroll.

OhmConnect

OhmConnect is an app that predicts when electricity is most expensive. In addition to helping you save energy and lowering your energy costs, it also provides weekly chances at cool rewards, such as cash prizes and gift cards from brands you love!

Before you go!

In addition to signing up for one of the programs above, you can also get ready for summer with a professional home energy analysis. A contractor specializing in energy efficiency will complete your analysis and provide a prioritized list of upgrades with associated energy savings, including any applicable incentives.
